Ubatuba (Verde Ubatuba / Green Ubatuba) is named after the coastal city of Ubatuba in São Paulo state, Brazil, and is one of the country's classic exports. Geologically it is a charnockite, a granite-family igneous rock, whose dark green-to-black body is flecked with gold, gray and green and shows large alkali-feldspar crystals. It has been a fabricator staple for decades thanks to its consistent dark, speckled look.

CARE & INSTALLATION

Clean with warm water and a stone-safe cleaner; wipe spills promptly and use trivets. Sealing needs depend on the selected stone and its use; confirm the care schedule with us. Slab movement and tone vary from swatches. Confirm the actual slab, finish and thickness before fabrication.
